Biographical or Historical Note

The Strickland family owned the residence located on 352 South Atlanta Street in Roswell, GA for many years. This land was originally owned by Ralph B. King and Joseph H. King, sons of Barrington King. In 1910, Lemual Asbury Johnson purchased the parcel of land that included both the 352 and 362 residences. In 1925, L.A. Johnson sold the 352 residence to Alvin Jesse Strickland, who lived there with his family until 1937 and later moved back to the home around 1940. After the death of Alvin Strickland in 1960, his wife, Eva Strickland, lived there alone for two years before moving in with her daughter. In 1972, the property was sold to Lewis Brannon who operated an antique shop and a greenhouse. As of 2013, it is a coffee shop called Land of a Thousand Hills.
